Are you driving while drugged?

When that common cold or other ailment makes you feel bad, you often take prescription or over the counter drugs. As a professional driver, you are required to be aware of the potential impairment that these medications may cause. If drowsiness, fatigue, tiredness, or other adverse effects are possible with the drugs you are taking, it is up to you to tell your supervisor. The smart driver will take him or herself out of service while taking drugs that may impair the ability to react quickly to the ever changing conditions of highway and scrap yard transportation. Do the right thing.... Don't operate equipment or machinery if your medicine creates any impairment.
