

Ask Dave

Q. Our drivers don't use log books, but one customer is 110 miles from our yard. I know there is a "100-mile exemption", so can we get by not using logbooks for this one customer?

A. No. The drivers making this customer trip of 110 miles each way must use log books. If they are stopped and receive a violation there will soon be a 'severity rating' of at least 5, which will have a negative impact on the drivers' and your company's safety rating score. Follow the rules!

Got a question for Dave? email: dave@isri.org

